NOTES BY THE WAY.

"Yours truly," hereinafter mentioned, struck Bruce County about the first of the present month—a very opportune time for "taking in" figuratively speaking, the township fall fairs, as you will observe. One thing that struck "your obedient servant" very forcibly was that the aforesaid fairs could be very well abolished, not only here but throughout Ontario, without detriment to agriculture and but at a small pecuniary loss to the hotels and taverns in the villages and hamlets in which they are held. The annual county show is all right and serves a worthy purpose. Such shows are deserving of encouragement and the people of Ontario should be public spirited enough to spare no effort to make them thoroughly representative of the counties in which they are held. The annual township show, however, which under the fostering care of the Ontario Government, has spread till its name is legion, serves only to detract from the influence, interest and usefulness of the county show. The township show has outlived its usefulness, (like the curl in the prize porker's tail its value was ever hard to determine) and it could be well relegated to oblivion, away up salt Salt Creek, and the government grant, upon which its existence depends, placed in a fund for the extermination of Canadian thistles and cockle, which, like the poor, we have always with us.

Bruce County has long been recognized as one of the banner wheat raising counties of Ontario—a doubtful distinction in these days of low prices, small profits and slow returns. The farmers here, however, accepted the Hon. George Foster's advice, some few years before the financial giant of the Conservatives imparted it to a confiding and expectant public, and embarked in mixed farming. They have been getting along fairly well since, although a large number of them are still partial to fall wheat, as it lightens the burden of spring work. The farmers here had a hard time of it last winter. The hay crop was a failure and straw was short. As a result hay was at a premium and pressed straw of the rankest and blackest description brought $10 and $12 a ton. They evidently profited by the lesson as one can perceive by the large amount of cattle corn that has been grown in this district (Bruce and Kincardine townships) this season.

But to return to the fairs. One thing noticeable is the decrease in the number of heavy draft horses. Like Ichabod, the glory of the Clydesdaes has departed and the blood and roadster now receives the attention that, but a few short years ago, was the Clyde's due. The Percheron is still in evidence, but not so popular as of yore. The Montreal Witness recently asked the question: "Is the horse doomed?" As to that we cannot say, but that he is frequently doomed by the farmer, with a stable full of heavy eating but unsaleable equines, is a fact not to be gainsaid.

I attended the fall show at Port Elgin, which was duly "opened" by his honor the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario. This interesting ceremony reminded me of the commencement exercises at a college. It was a two day show, his honor arrived on the afternoon of the second day and opened the fair just as the

NEWS FROM THE COUNTRY.

WILTON.

Mrs. Jas. Miller is quite poorly again. Miss Chamberlain, Portland, was visiting a few days at L. L. Gallagher.

The Free Methodists commence a series of revival meetings to-night.

Mrs. A. E. Gallagher, spent a few days last week visiting friends in Portland.

Miss Stella Neilson who was injured by falling from her wheel, is improving slowly. Miss Bertha Neilson is taking charge of her school at Morven.

Ernest, eldest son of Damon Babcock, died last Sunday evening after an illness of about two years. The funeral services were held in the Methodist church to-day and were largely attended.

MIDDLEVILLE.

Well, Mr. Editor, it is a long time since you heard any news from this part of the county called Middleville.

The farmers are very busy threshing their grain and they all say a fine yield for the dry season.

Husking is all the rage and corn plentiful. What about the appleout at Mr. M. D.'s, and when is it coming off boys.

Mr. E. German is having a well drilled, It is 82 feet deep, but no water yet. Dig deeper Peters and maybe victory will crown your efforts.

Mr. James Hall, Plainfield, has returned home after spending a few weeks with his uncle, Mr. William McConnell, Lime Lake. I wonder who it is that carries such a very long face. Well never mind, my dear, it is a bad penny that never returns.

Who were the two girls who got left last Thursday evening? The next time girls be sure of the rig you are claiming and don't make that other girl look so funny.

Mrs. Robert Mills, of Lime Lake, has returned home after spending five or six weeks around Westplain and vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Burley, of Deseronto, were visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Tyner, Lime Lake, on Sunday last.

Mr. J. C. Elliot, Westplain, and Mr. J. McCann, Lime Lake, were out hunting on Tuesday last. We heard the report of the gun, but where has the game gone boys. I think the next time if you start about dark you may find something.

Miss Agnes McCann, of Lime Lake, is spending a few weeks at Marysville.

I wonder where Wes and Johnny spent Sunday last? I hope they enjoyed themselves.

Miss Alice Tyner has been spending a few days with friends in Robin.

Mr. Wm. Brandon sent out a new drove of cattle on Monday last, which he had sold. They looked fine.

KINGSFORD.

Well, Mr. Editor, news was scarce last week, so I did not send any items but I endeavored to do the best I could this week for your valuable paper.

Miss Katharine Maeghar, of Marysville, spent a few days last week the guest of her friend Mrs. Daniel O'Hara.

David Doyle is spending a portion of this week in Enneshaw. We miss you Dave.

Thomas Winters, of Selby, spent Sunday the guest of his parents Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Winters.

Daniel J. McHenry, of Kingston Business College, formerly of this place, returned home Friday evening to spend a few days with his parents. We are glad to see your smiling face again.

Miss Maud Howe, of Rensel, is spending a few weeks with her aunt, Mrs. Jas. McMath, of Richmond.

L. C. Woodcock, school teacher, spent one evening last week with her friend C. Winter. Changes are lightsome, Ah, Laura.

Miss Cecil Sexsmith spent Thursday with her brother Tommie.

Master Archie Winters, of Selby, spent Sunday with his uncle Mr. Thos. Winters. We are pleased to say Mrs. John Turnbull has recovered after her severe illness.

Mrs. McMath and Mrs. Sexsmith, of the 5th con. called on friends in this neighborhood on Tuesday.

BINSON CO.

I consider most likely to do business for the nation in a businesslike way. But my general platform is that this is the best country mentioned in the geography, and that we have produced some of the greatest men on earth."

"That's right," exclaimed an enthusiastic auditor. "An' ter them remarks I'd like ter add that when it comes ter perducin' great men, this here town o' Higginsville don't take no back seat ten none o' em."

"Of course you have some very estimable citizens," said the drummer in a tone of surprise, "but I had reference to men whose greatness has been recognized by the world."

"That's the kind of great men I mean, too. We've got one o' em right here."

"Of course I'm not very well acquainted with the people of the place; not nearly as well acquainted as I hope to become."

"That accounts, mebbe, fur yer not knowin' Si Daggett."

"I must confess that I never made his acquaintance."

"Wal, we don't know what we'd do without Si. He jes' takes charge of everything that goes on, from fireworks on the Fourth of July ter camp meetin's. He's earned the right ter be looked up to."

"Still—er—is he a man whose greatness you would regard as having been recognized by the world?"

"Yes, sir. Yes, sirree! Why, ter my personal knowledge Si hez had three free circus tickets an' a pass on a railroad train!"

THE RED PLANET MARS.

Mr. Percival Lowell on the Canals That Water Its Oases.

One great difficulty that has always stood in the way of the acceptance of the theory that the canals are really artificial in origin arises from their great dimensions. Nearly all of them are several hundred, and some of them thousands of miles in length, while they vary in width from thirty to fifty or sixty miles. This difficulty vanishes, however, if we accept Mr. Lowell's interpretation of the canals. According to him they are not really canals, but lines of irrigation. Canals no doubt exist there, but they are too small to be separately visible. So the round spots at their junctions, some of which previous observers had detected, are, in Mr. Lowell's opinion, not lakes of water, but irrigated oases, the broad red-ochre expanses in the midst of which they appear, and which the canals intersect in every direction, being dry land in the most emphatic sense—in other words, deserts.

This statement gives the clew to Mr. Lowell's theory of Mars. His observations, and those of his assistants, have convinced him that the only considerable body of water on Mars is the dark blue band surrounding the polar cap. That cap, he thinks, as others have done, represents the winter accumulation of snow and contains, locked up by frost, practically all the water on the planet. As the polar snow begins to melt with the approach of spring, a circular sea forms around its edge. This sea gradually drains off, and its waters are lost in the dusky areas toward the equator. These areas are not entirely desert, like the broad red-ochre region, but contain the germs and roots of vegetation, which quickens with the annual access of water from the melting polar snows, and so the dusky expanses visibly darken in hue. Then the canals begin to make their appearance, first in the neighborhood of the dark areas. They are due, Mr. Lowell thinks, to the leading off of the water through channels of irrigation traversing the deserts, and the consequent growth of vegetation upon long narrow belts. There is not enough water to irrigate the desert continents as a whole, and so the inhabitants do the best they can by freshening certain belts and spots once every Martian year. Soon after the polar snows have completely disappeared, and the polar sea has been entirely drained off, the areas of vegetation begin to fade, and the canals and oases vanish, to make their appearance again when the season returns.

Remembering the sequence of observed phenomena on Mars as described above, it will be seen that this theory accounts very well for what is seen. At any rate, it is the most complete theory that has yet been advanced.

In regard to the supposititious inhabitants themselves, dwelling upon a half-dried-up world, and compelled to husband its small remaining store of water with such infinite pains, Mr. Lowell has nothing to offer. He accepts the opinions, previously advanced by others, that the people of Mars may be of gigantic stature, on account of the small force of gravity there, and therefore capable of greater physical feats than we can perform, and that, their world being further along in its geographical history than ours is, they also may have attained a more advanced state of civilization and culture than yet exists among the people of the earth.—Harper's Weekly.

An Old Family Society.

The Buchanan society, as the name denotes, is composed of individuals of the name and clan of Buchanan, and is the oldest named society in Scotland. It was instituted in Glasgow so far back as 1725. At a friendly meeting of some of the name of Buchanan held there on March 5 of that year, the following proposal was made:

"That the name of Buchanan, being now the most numerous name in the place, and many poor boys of that name, who are found to be of good genius, being lost, for want of good education, a fund might be begun and carried on by the name, the interest of which in time might enable some of them to be useful in church and state."

This society has since gone on with almost uninterrupted success. It has attained a position of high importance and is of great practical use.—Notes and Queries.

Manufacture of Condensed Milk.

Condensed milk, which is so much used for the food of infants, is prepared by slowly evaporating the water of milk by moderate heat. There are two varieties, the plain, which is condensed to about one-fourth of its bulk and superheated, and to which no sugar is added, and the stronger variety, which is more condensed and to which sugar cane is added in excess, holding about 45 per cent. of sugar among its solid ingredients. This excess of sugar prevents the decomposition of the milk, which will keep fresh for many hours after the can has been opened.

A Weary Search.

The story in the Editor's Drawer for March of the professor of mathematics who dreamed that his son was under the radical sign and he could not get him out, reminds a reader of an experience related by a Boston drawing teacher. She had been studying perspective one evening until bedtime, and during the night her sister, who roomed with her, heard her groping about the room and opening and closing bureau drawers.

"What are you hunting for, Mary?" inquired the sister.

"Oh, dear!" moaned the somnambulist, "I can't find the vanishing point!"

Took Chances on the Soap.

Lady (to dirty tramp)—"Here's a piece of soap, and I hope you will wash yourself with it, and here's a piece of home-made cake to eat."

Dirty Tramp (critically surveying the soap and cake)—"Is the soap home-made, too, mum?"

Lady—"Of course not."

Dirty Tramp—"Then, if you don't mind, mum, I'd rather eat the soap and scrub meself with the cake."—Fun.

She Got a Feat.

"Of course, I don't expect to get a seat," said the large lady, who was hanging to the strap. "And I don't think I ought to have one, neither. It ain't no more than right when a man has spent the last nickel he's got for a ride to make him stand up; indeed it ain't."

Seven men arose, each jingling some silver in his pocket, as if to resent the imputation.—Indianapolis Journal.

day and opened the fair just as the performance was about to close. He was escorted to an elevated platform by a brass band, where a number of addresses, remarkable only for their length, were yelled at him by several influential gentlemen of the village and district. The addresses were highly complimentary to his honor, the village and district aforesaid, and bore a touching reference to the loyalty of the people to our Gracious Queen, of whom his honor was a worthy representative, and the grand British institutions under which they moved, breathed and held their fair. During this trying ordeal his honor stood with features composed and head bared, unmindful of the cooling breezes from Lake Huron, which trailed through his locks with unblushing familiarity. There he stood with the spirit of a martyr and the dignity befitting a representative of a Sovereign, on whose domains the sun never sets, fortified with the knowledge that all things come to him who waits. His turn did arrive at last. To the tune of an accompaniment of a wheezy hurdy-gurdy of an adjacent merry-go-round, which was rendering a badly mutilated edition of Maggie Murphy's Home, his honor, the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario commenced his speech, which was to open and likewise close the show, hurdy-gurdy and all. Of the speech I will say nothing further than that it was good as such speeches go.

It does seem to me, that like the township fair, the services of our Lieutenant-Governor could be very well dispensed with. I don't wish to speak disparagingly of the present incumbent. He is a very worthy man and no doubt deserving of the distinction accorded him. He performs the duties of his position in a creditable manner and as a fair opener he is a glorious success. But when one perceives the struggle that the masses of Canada are enduring for very existence it begins to strike one as high time some of the frills with which our system of Government is embellished were lopped off. Our system of Government is badly in need of abbreviating, and as the position of Lieutenant-Governor seems to us a purely honorary one, let us begin with it.

Rheumatism Cured in a Day—South American Rheumatic Cure, for Rheumatism and Neuralgia, radically cures in 1 to 3 days. Its action upon the system is remarkable and mysterious. It removes at once the cause and the disease immediately disappears. The first dose greatly benefits. 75 cents. Sold by A. W. GRANGE & BRO.

A Traveler's Tale.

The tall man with the literary stoop in his shoulders then broke the silence. "The average native of Porto Rico," he began, "is so large that he will fill a good sized hoghead."

A loud protest went up from the loungers in front of the post-office. The tall man cleared his throat again.

"I ought to add," he said, in a softened tone, "that he will fill the hoghead with dark-brown molasses."

Whereupon the hour for dinner having arrived the house adjourned until 2 p.m., without ceremony.—New York World.

Doesn't Always Work.

Father—"When a young man has his heart in what he's doing, he's bound to succeed."

Son—"You're wrong, governor. I had my whole heart in it when I proposed to Miss Bruly and I didn't come within a million miles of success."

A Safe Rule.

"Cutely, why are you always asking old Blowley's advice?"

"Because I can make big money by doing what he tells me not to do."

NEURASTHENIA.

Weakened Nerves and Nervous Diseases are Cutting Off Thousands

Paine's Celery Compound Makes Nervous People Well and Strong.

Health is the first and most important thing in this life of ours. Health is a blessing far beyond our computation; it is vastly more important than wealth or great social distinction.

One of the most dreaded troubles of the present day is nervousness. It is generally acknowledged that nervous diseases are growing alarmingly prevalent in our midst.

The causes that lead to Neurasthenia, or weakness of the nerves, are many. Business cares, feverish haste after riches, social and household worries, sexual and alcoholic excesses, all contribute to the breaking down and physical ruin of thousands of men and women.

In words of truth and soberness we set before the sick and afflicted the claims of Paine's Celery Compound as a quick relief and certain cure for all forms of nervous diseases. It is a perfect restorer of nerve force and power to the weakened and debilitated system. Prominent men and women, all over the country, have renewed their lives and kept their places in business and in society by using Paine's Celery Compound. In all large cities, where nervous diseases are most frequently seen, the best physicians prescribe Paine's Celery Compound with immense success.

The following letter from Mrs. Alfred Perry, Port Maitland, N.S., proves that Paine's Celery Compound has no equal for the cure of nervous diseases in whatever form they may present themselves:

"For two years my system was all run down, and I suffered more than I can describe from nervous prostration and insomnia; at times I almost lost my reason from severe pain at base of the brain. My husband advised me to try Paine's Celery Compound, which I did, and the effects were wonderful. I soon began to sleep well, the pain left my head, my whole system was strengthened, and I am now enjoying very good health."

"I would cheerfully recommend Paine's Celery Compound to any one suffering from like troubles. You have my best wishes for the future success of your excellent remedy."

CASTORIA

Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrups, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd, cures Diarrhoea and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

Dr. G. C. Osceola,
Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

Dr. J. F. Kitchener,
Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. Archer, M. D.,
111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

NAPANEE, FRIDAY OCT. 16, 1896.

We ask all our subscribers to remember that the WEEKLY GLOBE stops at the expiration of time paid for. To secure the EXPRESS and the GLOBE prompt renewals are in order. From this date the subscription will be $1.25 per year. This increase in price is necessary because the sum we have to remit to the GLOBE for each paper has been increased. The GLOBE has however been much improved and enlarged. The two papers for $1.25 is still a great bargain.

THE Spectator, published in London, England, a Liberal-Unionist weekly, supports Lord Aberdeen in refusing to sign those orders-in-council. It says: We do not doubt that Lord Aberdeen acted quite rightly. It is one of the chief duties of a colonial governor, as of a constitutional sovereign, to hold an equal balance between the two parties in the state, and to refuse to allow an outgoing ministry which has been condemned by the popular voice to embarrass their successors by appointments which, though technically not illegal, are against the spirit of the constitution. A governor is a trustee, and must act as one.

Richard knows more about tariff framing than any other member of the Government. He may consent at a later stage to waste the hours of declining life in the comfortable dalliance of the High Commissioner's Chambers, Victoria Street, London, S.W., but it is doubtful if this is done until the new tariff is safely launched."

SHE TURNED UP AGAIN.

A Raft Had Proved to Be a Poor Conveyance For an Elopement.

"I rode up to a cabin in Knox county, Ky.," said John William, a traveling man, "and as I approached the man of the house inquired:

"Stranger, did you see a red-headed gal with a yaller sunbonnet comin' from town?"

"No."

"I reckon she'll be hyar termorren."

"Expectin' company?"

"No; jes my darter. She'd been down ter Frankfort. She tuk it in her head ter git married, an' run off with a no-count feller, Tim Hadley. They stole a raft o' mine an' floated down the Kaintuck ter Frankfort."

"Did you stop them?"

"No; mall gits ter Frankfort quick-er'n a raft, so I writ ter Jim Wakefield down thar ter buy th' logs, put Tim in jail fer stealin' th' raft, an' send th' money back hyer with Sal. I reckon she missed the stage."

"At that moment a girl turned the corner of the road, and the old man said:

"Waal, sal, yo got back?"

"Yaas, dad."

"Tim in jail?"

"Yaas, dad."

"Bring back th' money fer th' logs?"

"Yaas, dad."

"Waal, go in an' cook supper, an' nex' time yo git married run off with a man who has more gumption than ter try ter git away on a raft."

"Yaas, dad," and the girl went to the kitchen as though she had never left it."—Washington Star.

Making It Plain.

The young woman from Boston was at the table in a railroad restaurant in the far west and when she essayed to cut the steak with which she had been served, she discovered that what she needed was a higher education in athletics. After four or five ineffectual attempts to dissect it she called to the waiter:

"Can't you," she asked, "give me a bit of steak which is characterized by less tenacity of tissue?"

The waiter staggered and a cowboy across the table looked up.

"I didn't quite ketch, mum," said the waiter, bending forward with his hand to his ear.

"I said," and there was a shade of annoyance in her tone, "that I desired a portion of steak in which the coherence of the molecules was not so apparent."

"Oh," stammered the waiter, and he stood fixed with his mouth open in amazement.

The young woman became embarrassed.

"Here," snorted the gallant cowboy, coming to the rescue, with a sounding whack on the table, "git a move on you; what the lady wants is a piece of meat that ain't so tough, she can't tick her purty teeth into it, see!" and the young woman actually smiled as the waiter hurried away.—Detroit Free Press.

WHY HER BACK ACHES

THIS IS NO PATENT MEDICINE ADV.,
SO READ TO THE END.

One of the Ills Incident to the Ordinary Housekeeper's Life - Fortunately a Symptom Only, Not a Disease—Heed Nature's Warning in Time.

What causes backache? Whence the unkind fate that selects this particular spot for pain, soreness and stiffness? In a general way it may be said to be due to overstrain and congestion, whether brought about by position, excess of work or an overtaxing of the mind and of the emotions.

Worry makes some backs ache; excessive mental work may have the same result; too long a time in the upright standing position wears out others; and definite disease like gout, rheumatism, tubercular conditions and spinal cord lesions, will also cause pain in the back that varies from a dull ache to genuine torture.

This will suggest the remedy. Backache is but a symptom, not a disease. It is often the outward expression of an inward and hidden congestion or of an active inflammation that needs prompt treatment. The spinal nerves may be the seat of various forms of neuralgia that do not cure themselves and which call for active medical aid.

First, as regard posture. Everyone knows that standing is peculiarly injurious to women. The fact is common property; yet quite erroneous ideas prevail concerning the reason of this disability. The real cause is this: A woman's knee is not constructed in such a way as to form a good part of a supporting column. Mechanically it is imperfect for this particular purpose. Experience has proved that women are not made for standing.

Position, though not everything, is important in securing freedom from backache. To stand correctly, the head should be well back, the chin in, and shoulder and hips should be in a straight line. With ill-fitting shoes that do not allow the proper position of the foot, it is impossible to stand thus correctly, and much irritating spinal discomfort is the result.

In these days no sensible woman laces. The warning note to-day is transferred from the corset to the heavy skirt—that abomination of awkwardness and disaster.

The constant dragging at the small of the back, the flopping of stiff material about the feet and ankles, the heavy weight insufficiently supported, make a combination of evils that the most graceful and robust women find it difficult to overcome. Seven or ten pounds of skirt may be said, like the Mormon's seventeen wives, to be too much.

Backache is a prominent symptom of neurasthenia, or nervous exhaustion, of hysteria and of spinal irritation. These are conditions in which there is exhaustion or irritation of the nerve centres, together with alteration in the quality or quantity of the blood.

Is a very remarkable remedy, both for INTERNAL and EXTERNAL use, and wonderful in its quick action to relieve distress.

And it is said that this did not cover all, but that thousands of dollars' worth of penknives, scissors, etc., was carried away in addition.—Stratford Beacon.

FROM among a number of freehand sketches as he chooses to call them by "Puck" in the last issue of "The Week," we cull the following anent Sir Richard Cartwright: "He was born and aristocrat and bred a gentleman. He is not a person easily described. He is a man of education. He has opinions—well-defined opinions—on most current topics. He has a mind well cultivated and a presence never to be forgotten. It would be unusual for a person to have Sir Richard pointed out to him to-day and not recognize him to-morrow. In points he is the exact antipodes to Mr. Laurier. Mr. Laurier's weak points are his strength; Sir Richard's strong points are his weakness. He has as already said, clear and positive opinions on most subjects, and a heaven-born gift of uttering them. No person in Canada can speak with such inexorable clearness, such killing pertinence. We have heard laudations upon the merit of calling a spade a spade, but Sir Richard not only calls a spade a spade but he is quite likely to hold up the spade with galling malignity, and make his opponent feel that the air is dense with spades which are likely to strike in any direction. Sir Richard has the dangerous gift of humor. No doubt he has the kindly article which makes us laugh, and even when the point is turned against us, we join in the fun and feel our own wits brightened. But this is strictly reserved for home and friends. For his opponents Sir Richard's humour is barbed. From his bow fly poisoned arrows, and most of them hit the mark. It is not individuals alone who are wounded by these barbed messengers which are sent in hosts to find their victims, but very often great interests. Hence enmities, hence bitterness. History is made by breaking down abuses, and smashing the ugly head of privilege. It is right and patriotic and manly to do it. But if these words reach the eye of some ambitious youth who thinks that high office is the greatest thing in the world, then let me whisper gently in his ear, "Don't do anything great, my friend. Don't hurl your sturdy javelins at injustice and fraud and usurpation. Drift sweetly along. Let other enthusiasts deal the blows and get the abuse, and do you with amiable smile make your peace with averages and mediocrities. Then, indeed, covered with the serene mantle of Opportunism may you hope, to become Premier! Sir Richard Cartwright is the ablest financier in Canada and best fitted for the position of Finance Minister, and would be Finance Minister if it had not been deemed wise by the Liberal leaders on the eve of the election to throw a sop to the tariff pets, combinesters and monopolists. Word was passed round that if Laurier wins Sir Richard will be set aside, and therefore you will be safe from his sledgehammer blows. When the Government was formed, some effect had to be given to this implied compact. Hence Mr. Fielding became Minister of Finance, and Sir Richard was consigned to what, under ordinary circumstances, would be the purely ornamental post of Trade and Commerce. It would be strange, almost ironical, if Sir Richard should still prove to be the commanding force in the tariff policy of the new Government. Let the combinesters have a care. Knowledge is power, and Sir

The Motherly Landlady.

A friend of mine changed his boarding place last week, going to one of those houses that advertise home comforts and a motherly landlady, which generally means that she is a person who will pry into one's private affairs and read long letters left lying about. This particular landlady happens to regard drinking and smoking as particular devices of the evil one, so when my friend began to praise a new brand of tobacco at the dinner table the other night she saw "her chance, and promptly chipped into the conversation.

"Smoking makes men utterly selfish," she said, as a starter, enunciating her words as if she were sawing ice into symmetrical blocks.

"My friend was dazed for a moment, for he had not much experience with people who denounce everything as wrong which they do not personally fancy, but he quickly recovered and answered: "Possibly so, but after all, it's a standoff, for abstinence from smoking seems to make people deucedly impolite; or, possibly, you indulge a little? So many of the ladies enjoy their cigarettes nowadays."

Then the storm broke.—Boston Post.

Her Great Sacrifice.

"Papa!"
The ennobling impress of high resolve was visible upon the young girl's brow.

"Papa, to help you pay your mortgage I have decided to make the most complete sacrifice a devoted daughter can make."

"My child," replied the distracted parent, "surely you do not mean that—"

"Yes, papa, I will."

A look of intense determination appeared on her face, and her countenance lighted up with filial affection, as she added:

"Yes, papa, I will sell my bicycle."

A Little Girl's Riddle.

Several children were asking riddles the other day, and a bright little girl who listened, got the idea of what a riddle was. The next day she went to her father and said: "There was a blind and curtains on a pole and the pole fell and two men laughed." The father promptly gave it up, when she said: "Don't you see the point?" Upon being answered in the negative she puzzled her brains for awhile, and said: "Neither do I." She is now practicing on riddles that have some meaning in them.

Tired, Aching Feet.

Those who are troubled with tired, aching feet will find great relief by bathing them at night in hot water, then anointing them with vaseline, which should be rubbed in until they have become dry. In the morning rub them with a solution of alcohol and salt. This may seem a little trouble at first, but it really does not take much time, and the relief obtained more than pays for the effort demanded.—Mrs. Woods in Housekeeping.

Educating Influence of Fairs.

The farmer needs his vacation as much as the merchant or the preacher. Besides the gain in the way of rest, he will see many things which will be of profit if he keeps his eyes open. He will get suggestions about crops and cultivation and about different breeds of stock that he can never get by staying on his own farm, and no better place can be selected than by attending your county, district or state centres, together with alteration in the quality or quantity of the blood.

Painful points occur next in frequency in the middle of the back and in the lumbar region. Sometimes the entire surface is sensitive, and even the clothes themselves are a source of pain and discomfort.

Bending the body, standing, going up stairs, lifting, holding the arms in any cramped position, etc., increases the pain and sensations of weakness, causing sharp shooting pains to radiate over the body elsewhere. Cold or heat applied to the surface of the back also causes sharp pain through these tender points.

When mental excitability is a marked feature of nervous exhaustion, the pain is also more intense. In this depressed form it is a prominent symptom as well, though not so acute and severe.

In this form of neurasthenia it increases after fatigue and exertion, after extensive movements of the vertebral column and after exposure and overwork. There is a general feeling of oppression, breathlessness, palpitation of the heart and a sense of constriction about the head.

It is impossible to stand for any length of time without leaning against something or bending one of the knees. What is more complained of is weakness in performing the various movements necessary to daily life and the rapid exhaustion that is so discouraging.

Neuralgia of the spinal nerves produces backache. This particular form of neuralgia may be due to the poison of gout, rheumatism, malaria, etc. What is known as muscular rheumatism is also a cause. Acute or chronic kidney troubles give pain in the back, and so also does disease of other organs in the abdomen or pelvis.

As the causes of this distressing condition, backache, differ widely, it naturally follows that the various remedies to relieve it are by no means the same in character. Strain induced by posture demands change of position. Let those who stand many hours each day sit whenever possible, and lie at full length on a couch or on the floor whenever occasion permits. Walking is also a relief. Heavy skirts must be discarded, together with all imperfect shoes, badly fitting corsets and waists made too stiff with whalebone.

The so-called "spinal diseases," tubercular bone troubles, require the attention of a careful physician. Whatever the treatment, cod liver oil and an abundance of fresh air will be two of the things prescribed. Pain in the back due to states of nervous exhaustion require tonic, remedies such as arsenic, nux vomica, iron, cod liver oil, rest, exercise and cold baths.

Sometimes quick sponging, alternately with hot and cold water, is of great benefit. The pains of exhaustion and irritability require a sojourn in the mountains whenever possible. This is a hint for vacations. A long sea voyage is also beneficial, and sometimes in a warm, soft southern climate pains of every description will disappear, backache included.—New York World.

A Self-Evident Culinary Fact.

If hot meats and soups are covered before they are perfectly cool they will surely spoil; the hot air must have a place to escape, or the meat will be affected.

THE FARM ORCHARD.

SOME EXCELLENT HINTS FOR PLANTING FROM KANSAS.

The General Idea May be Followed, But the Varieties Should be Chosen For the Locality as Demonstrated by Successful Growers.

One of the first things to consider in "opening" a farm or founding a home is the establishment of an orchard, says Farm and Home; not merely tree planting for sake of covering space, regardless of kind and quality, but the selection and setting out of such varieties as will be of value for eating, cooking, marketing and keeping. The plan of orchard, as reproduced here, has been in operation several years in northern Kansas and while the varieties of fruit are especially adapted to that region, many of them may safely be set as far north as southern Ontario, southern Nebraska and Iowa, northern Missouri and a considerable part of Illinois and most if not all answer for a wide strip extending farther north. The orchard fronts to the south, is 320 feet square with a space 100 by 100 feet reserved for house, lawn, garden and small fruits. The outbuildings are located to the northeast and are not shown in the diagram. The plan explains where the apples, pears, plums, cherries and peaches are located, and when filled properly will be just what the home needs and can heartily appreciate.

The orchard in the diagram contains 113 apple trees, viz., 68 winter, 27 autumn and 18 summer. Of winter varieand then Grimes Golden, Little Romanette, Jonathan, Newton Pippin, Rawles Genet, White Winter Pearmain, Winesap, Yellow Belleflower, Smith's Cider, American Golden Russet and Roman Stem. Of autumn varieties, beginning at east side, plant first row Bailey Sweet, next Cooper's Early, Rambo, Lowell, Maiden's Blush and Hewes Crab. Of summer varieties, beginning with outside row, plant Summer Rambo, Early Harvest, Oldenburg and Red Astrachan. The apple trees being 49 feet apart admits of a good peach orchard, which matures and bears much fruit long before the apples trees cause the necessity of their removal. For peaches begin on the east side and plant in first row Alexander, next Crawford's Late, and then in order, Crawford's Early, George the Fourth, Royal Kensington, Hale's Early, Heath's Cling, Large Early York, Lemon Cling, Old Mixon, Free, Chinese Cling, Smock, Old Mixon Cling, Stump of the World, Troth's Early, Ward's Late and Indian Blood Cling. The pear trees, by the mistake of the engraver, are shown 20 feet apart; they should be 19 feet. There would thus be five rows, each containing five trees. Judiciously much them. Plant first row to Bartlett, then Flemish Beauty, Howell, Seckel and Vicar of Wakefield.

The plums are clustered instead of in rows, and consist of an equal number of Wild Goose, Imperial Gage, Damson and Lombard. The diagram shows three rows, 20 feet apart, for cherries. The distance is all right, but there should be five trees to the row. Several rows of small fruits are planted between the cherry rows, also in other parts of the orchard, where convenient. Of cherries, a row each of Morello, Early Richmond and Governor Wood. The crabapples consist of two each of Transcendents, Hyslop and Whitney, and occupy space between garden and house. Apricots, two each of Large Early, Peach and Hemskirk, and planted near garden, with a half-dozen Orange quinces in vicinity of summer house, west of vegetable and flower garden.

Of blackberries plant twelve each of Wilson's Early, Snyder, Kittanning and Lawton, and set out between pear trees and plum grove. Of raspberries set between the cherry rows, twelve each of Turner, Gregg, Cuthbert, McCormick and Souhegan; while of gooseberries plant between plum grove and cherry trees, twelve bushes each of Houghton, Pale Red and Whitesmith. Plant currants in same space as gooseberries, only to the north and a half-dozen each of Red Dutch, Versailles and White Grape. The strawberry bed occupies space in the north-west part of the reserved ground west of the pathway leading to orchard, and contains equal numbers of the Wilson, Crescent, Charles Downing, Miner and Sharpless. Grapes fill spaces on each edge of all side and rear pathways and consist of 20 Concord, 10 Worden, 10 Delaware, 10 Clinton and 10 Niagara.

The Chestnut.

The chestnut is a native of America and grows upon the thinnest and driest soils. It does not do well upon limestone soils nor on wet land. Though the tree sometimes thrives in localities where it is not a native, it is best to study well the soil and climate before attempting its culture. The tree grows naturally from the seed, and also reproduces itself abundantly from the sprouts at the base of the trunk when the trees are cut in the forest. The nuts lose their vitality in a very short time, so that care must be taken to sow them at once, or to keep them so their vitality may not be impaired. If once allowed to dry the nuts will not grow. Keep them in moist sawdust till needed for planting, and if possible plant the seed where the tree is to grow, as the loss of the taproot is a greater check to the chestnut than any other tree.—Denver Field and Farm.

An Economist of Nature.

A traveller passing through Kansas a short while ago stopped at a settler's cabin, near the western part of the state line. The owner, a tall, lank farmer, with a stub of a beard and sharp blue eyes, slowly hoisted his booted legs off a rail fence and slouched up to the stranger.

"How yer be, stranger? Goin' fer ter stop long in these parts?"

"Oh, no—only a very short time."

"That's lucky for you, stranger, 'cause there's goin' ter be a little blow here shortly, and it mightn't be safe fer ye to be round. I've just been er-fixin' up the chicks over yonder."

"Why, what funny looking chickens? Somebody plucked half their feathers off!"

"Somebody? Say, stranger, be yer jokin'? 'Cause it's safer fer ye if I knows what yer mean. Them air plucked chicks is what the last blow did."

"What! a cyclone plucked half the feathers out?"

"Yep, that's it; and, stranger, I've got 'em tied to that fence er-waitin' fer the next blow, which is due here purty nigh bout now. Yer see, when it comes it will take the other half off and save pluckin'. There's lots ter do hereabouts, stranger, 'sides pluckin' chicks."—From the "Editor's Drawer" in Harper's Magazine for October.

A Correction.

The amateur political reformer was talking with a ward politician, who had been sent to the Legislature the year before, and was anxious to get in again, under the auspices of the amateur reformers. The politician professed the highest regard for reform in every way, and also pointed out how hard it would be for the amateurs to get any other capable man to stand as a candidate for them.

"Honest men is scarce," remarked the politician, "but I'd run fer yez, an' pull the votes of the byes i n the district."

"Yes," assented the reformer, "honest men are scarce, and yet I have heard it said that every man has his price."

"Don't you believe it," returned the would-be candidate, heartily. "I know that when I was at the capitol every man didn't have his price. Why, dere was lots of times we had to compromise for fifty cents on the dollar."—From the "Editor's Drawer" in Harper's Magazine for October.

THE POULTRY YARD.

Some of the Difficulties a Novice Finds in Choosing a Breed.

A difficult problem for the amateur to solve is choosing a breed of poultry. It has been estimated that there are about one hundred distinct breeds of fowls. This would appear quite a large field from which to make a selection, and yet it will pay best to make a judicious choice at the start. Each variety has its champions who have settled this question to their own satisfaction years ago and each will of course, uphold strongly the merits of his particular body.

The veteran breeder, Mr. James Rankin of South Easton, Mass., once told me that he had been actively engaged in the poultry business for over 50 years and had in this time experimented with nearly all the prominent breeds of fowls, and finally, some years ago, had settled on the Light Brahmas and Pekin Ducks. With both of these he has been very successful, especially with the latter. First, let us consider what branch of the business we wish to follow. To one who attends the leading shows the temptation to breed for prize-winners is very strong. The display of such superior specimens calls forth unusual admiration and enthusiasm as each particular breed is seen in the pink of condition and with the most attractive surroundings. If he enters the show and comes first to the Bantams, he will probably be carried away with their great variety and the wonderful beauty of their plumage and general appearance. As he proceeds, he may come next to the Hamburgs, which rival almost all the other breeds in markings and effectiveness. Again, he stops at the Polish and Houdans. Here the variety seems endless, and with their peculiar attractive head-feathering he is lost in new admiration. Next, he comes to the Leghorns, Minorcas, Andalusians, Black Spanish and Dorkings. The variety of solid colors is something

The Use of Sulphur.

Sulphur is sometimes recommended as useful for inducing fowls to lay. A little of it occasionally may prove beneficial, but too much will cause a lameness which is commonly called rheumatism, especially if the yards and houses are damp. The trouble is the anxiety to get a large yield of eggs often leads the owner to feed his flocks as much in a day as ought to be given in a week. It should be treated as a medicine rather than as a food, and given with caution. A small amount of sulphur is needed by animals, but this is for the most part benefit of our experience, so you will succeed. If you are not earning $50 per month and expenses, write us at once for particulars. Liberal commissions paid part time men. class comprising the almost endless variety of Games. These, with their beautiful plumage and erect carriage, and with the knowledge that some of them can fight, (which fact always seems to appeal to an amateur) put him again into a condition of doubt. In his next turn he meets something larger comprising the Plymouth Rocks, Wyandottes and Dominiques. Here the more sober colors and unpretentious exteriors incline his mind into a more practical channel. His last turn brings him to the largest breeds of all, the Langshans, Cochins and Brahmas. Now size, variety of color, plumage and fine carriage seem all combined, and as he gazes in wonder at such splendid proportions he is lost in uncertainty and wishes he could breed them all.—Country Gentleman.

A good way when this point is reached, is to study the merits of each breed separately from their admirer's point of view, and when this is done you will know just what you want and more directly the object aimed at.

tom; their ends flush with underside of bottom. Two strips 1-2 inch thick and 4 inches wide are nailed to the edges of the bottom, thus making a trough 3 inches deep with ends 18 inches high. I then take strips 1-4-inch thick, 3 inches wide and 18 inches long, pointed at upper end, and nail them to the sides of the trough, leaving a space between pickets of 1 1/2 inches for chicks or 2 inches for fowls. This gives a complete and durable feed rack, where the weak have equal chance with the strong, and no waste of feed. I begin to feed in the rack when chicks are about six weeks old. All wet feed is given in the racks. I always feed fowls and chicks separately.—Farm and Home.

How to Cure Black Knot.

A remedy for black knot in the cherry, plum, etc., is to cut off the most seriously affected branches below the diseased part. Shave the other knots off smoothly with the surface of the limb, then paint all the scars with any kind of cheap paint that does not contain lead, into which is mixed a spoonful of paris green to a pound of paint. This method has proved effective among Connecticut Shakers, who are very capable fruit growers. Many others recommend painting the wound with raw linseed oil without any mixture of the poison. Probably the better plan is to entirely cut off every affected branch at a good distance below the black knot, painting the wound with one of the preparations just named.

Be careful not to have any sap or juice on the knife from near the black knot when you cut off the limb, as this might inoculate the healthy sap with germs of black knot. The Massachusetts Experiment Station has given much attention to this pest for

A pad and pencil in the kitchen is a great help to the cook's memory.

Never leave vegetables, fruit or cooked meats in a tin vessel over night or any length of time, as there are poisonous substances in the tin which are highly dangerous and often poison whole families.

Sprinkle unslacked lime around the dark corners of your cellar to absorb the dampness and kill disease germs. It isn't a bad idea to keep a box of lime setting in the cellar or in any damp closet or room.

Don't let rolls of goods, scraps and shoes lie around on closet floors; make wall pockets of brown denim—the cheap quality—or old gunny sacking, and tack on the walls, in which store away your odds and ends. It will be much neater, handier and more economical.

"Say au revoir, but not good-by," he murmured. "That is a sensible idea," answered the girl, who has been engaged before. "If we start in to saying good-by we won't go through for three hours."—Minneapolis Tribune.

Barnes Tormer—Why, sir, time and again I have had the entire audience rise as one man to their feet, giving cheer after cheer. Roscius de Hamme—Bound to get their ten cents' worth in some way, eh?—Indianapolis Journal.

Dukane—I don't know how you came to lose money in that scheme. You told me it was a rare investment. Gaswell—The investment may have been a rare one, but I was well done before I got through with it.—Pittsburg Chronicle.

"What would you say to a good, steady job of work?" asked the kind woman. "What would I say to a job of work?" repeated Perry Pattetic. "Missus, it would be impossible for me to repeat to a lady what I would say to it."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

"Did you notice what a lot of applause I got?" asked the young orator, proudly. "I did," answered the old stager. "And did you notice that the applause only came in when you quoted Lincoln or Jefferson, or some of the rest of them?"—Indianapolis Journal.

Glady's—That young man looked at you very hard. Do you know him? Dolly—I can't remember whether he was the gentleman who saved my life from drowning, or merely one of those to whom I was engaged.—Judge.

"I can't see what makes all these American girls so crazy to marry a prince or something of the sort," said Mr. Jason. "I reckon," suggested Mrs. Jason, "that they want to be sure of gittin' some man that won't be always talkin' about mother's cookin'!"—Indianapolis Journal.

Young Mr. Fitts—What are you smiling at, dear? Mrs. Fitts—I was just thinking how you used to sit and hold my hand for an hour at a time before we were married. How silly you were! Mr. Fitts—I wasn't silly at all. I held your hand to keep you away from the piano!—Comic Cuts.

He Wants Rest.

"I'm too old to get married," declared Gruntly.

"What has that to do with it?" asked his partner.

"Well, I've worked hard all my life and want to enjoy the few years that are left me."

THE SHOW AT THE GUELPH AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE.

Experiments Worth Millions to Farmers and Highly Valued by Them—Keeping in Touch With the Agriculturists—Co-operative Testing.

The fall session of the Ontario Agricultural College always opens at the Model Farm, Guelph, on October 1. It will be interesting, therefore, to take a walk around the college and farm grounds in company with Prof. C. A. Zavits, experimentalist; Prof. H. E. Dean, of the dairy department, and Mr. Wm. Rennie, farm superintendent, and see the home of the labors of coming students and learn something about it and its capabilities. The college grounds and farm are situated on the brow of a hill on the Dundas road, immediately at Guelph's city limits. It is easy of access by the Guelph Electric Railway, the terminus of which is at the entrance to the grounds. As one enters the main gateway a magnificent scene presents itself to the eye. Directly in front of the stately college building and several lecture halls spreads a well-kept lawn, 20 acres in extent, studded with artistically designed flower beds, ornamental trees, etc., leaving ample evidence of the master hand of the landscape gardener.

The college proper faces the head of the main drive, and includes, besides the residence of the president, class rooms, a museum, reading room, library and students' dormitories. Next to this is a handsome new building in course of erection for the use of the chemical department, and which, it is expected, will be opened at the beginning of the fall session, thus replacing the former one destroyed by fire. Near by are also convocation hall, the experimental building, the residences of the bursar, farm superintendent and experimentalist, botanical laboratory and greenhouse. At the rear are the outbuildings, barns, stables and carpenter's shops. Each of the departments named is equipped with the most modern and approved appliances.

The farm embraces 550 acres in all, of which about 330 immediately surrounds the main college building, the balance being on the westerly side of the Dundas road, on which are the dairy and poultry buildings.

The crops this year, on the whole, fully up to the average. Eighty-five acres yielded about 200 tons of hay, this being exceptionally heavy. On 76 acres oats were grown, but the ravages of the army worm devastated quite half the crop. Twenty acres were devoted to Mandscheuri barley, which turned out a very heavy crop. The two varieties of winter wheat this year in the larger fields were Dawson's Golden chaff and the early Genesee giant, each of which yielded some 35 bushels per acre. Twenty acres of Prussian blue peas, producing 80 loads, have not yet been threshed.

The experimental fields occupy about 50 acres at the rear of the main college building on a gradual slope to the southwest. These grounds are divided into upwards of 2000 plots, which are devoted to the testing of different varied and Great Divide potatoes have given good satisfaction.

Hartley's bronze top turnip and the improved short white carrot stand high in the tests made.

Great stress is laid upon the fact that in selecting even the very best varieties of seeds, those which are plump and well-developed give far greater satisfaction than seed which is smaller and shrunk.

In addition to the 2000 experiments made at the farm, great interest is being taken in this work outside, inasmuch as 2200 farmers throughout Ontario are carrying on experiments in connection with the college work at this time. Already this year there have been received over 1000 applications for winter wheat seed for experimental purposes, being nearly double the number of last year. Every spring a circular is issued, giving the experiments which are to be conducted during the following season and which practically cover all kinds of farm crops. A copy of this circular may be had on application to the experimentalist, from whom all information can be obtained.

In the horticultural department extensive experiments are continuously being made. Among the most important this season was that made with 180 varieties of strawberries. The results of this experiment will be looked forward to with a great deal of interest in the next two or three years.

The whole work of the institution from an experimental standpoint is of a very practical nature, and is proving of great value to every farmer, fruit grower, dairyman and live stock breeder, signifying as it does not only a matter of great interest but of dollars and cents as well.

The newest department of the college is that of bacteriology, wherein a careful study is made of the germs of disease in animals and the various forms and conditions of bacteria playing so important a part in the ripening of cream and the development of cheese.

The dairy department is a model of perfection. The building in which the animals are housed is about 120 feet in length, fitted up with two milking machines, and has accommodation for 30 head. Everything in connection with the stable is scrupulously clean. At the present time there are 25 cows in full milk, their average daily yield being about 300 pounds. In the flush of the season, when the pasture is at its best, one or two of the cows give enough milk to produce as much as 2 1-2 pounds of butter each per day. The herd is made up of Jerseys, Holsteins, Ayrshires and grades. One Holstein during the past year yielded 10,000 pounds of milk, producing over 400 pounds of butter.

An immense circular silo is attached to the building and which, when full, holds 250 tons of ensilage. This silo is now being filled, the machine used being the Smalley, which is cutting at the rate of 70 tons per day.

Situate to the east of the silo are the dairy school and home dairy buildings, completely fitted with all modern appliances. Lectures are delivered during the session to the male and female students, and practical lessons given in butter and cheese making. The record of each cow's yield and quality of milk is kept, and thereby the most profitable breed of animals is ascertained. In the experimental department of the dairy it was shown from equal quantities of rich and ordinary milk that the former produced a cheese weighing 17 pounds, whereas one made from the latter weighed only 53 3-4 pounds. Interesting experiments are carried on in this department which cannot fail to prove of great value to dairymen throughout the land.

In the poultry department there are at present some 400 birds, representing every choice variety, each breed having a separate house and run.

A FOUR-YEAR-OLD.

A four-year-old's a baby,
Whatever you do or say,
You may put him out in a roundabout
And teach him the time of day;
As his muscles grow he will bluster and blow
Till you think him an army of men;
Until short of breath you may "love" him
to death
And declare "he's his father again."
But, whether you will, he's a baby still,
Whatever you do or say.

A four-year-old's a baby,
Whatever you do or say,
He may run and shout and want to play out
In the yard the lifelong day;
He may put on his hat and his coat and all that,
And button his shoes with a hook;
He may swagger and strut and pretend to be, but
No matter how big he may look
He's a baby still, whether you will,
Whatever you do or say.

A four-year-old's a baby,
You may call him a man, as a mother can,
Seventy times a day;
If he cries when he's hurt, all covered with dirt,
You'll gather him up in your arms,
Nor kisses refuse to cover the bruise
And quiet his tearful alarms,
For whether you will, he's a baby still,
Whatever you do or say.

HOW SHE FOOLED HIM

The momentous interview between Mrs. Jefferson Wayland and Mr. Hopkins was over at last—and the lady was heartily glad that it was so. All her smiles and suavity were needed—all her slender stock of patience was exhausted.

"Of all intolerable creatures, I do think an old bachelor is the most intolerable," thought Mrs. Wayland to herself, looking at Mr. Hopkins with the sweetest and most interested of expressions. "I wonder if he really means to stay here all day—and I have an engagement at two!"

But Mr. Hopkins had risen to his feet at last, with an "ahem," and a manifest intention of going and Mrs. Wayland rose, too, with a soft rustle of silken robes and expensive laces.

"Then you think, madam, that circumstances are tolerably auspicious as regards the consummation of my matrimonial happiness within a very brief period of time?" was Mr. Hopkins' final query.

"My dear sir, I am quite sure of it," answered Mrs. Wayland emphatically, as she followed Noah Hopkins, Esquire, to her front door.

Noah was a tall, portly gentleman, something on the shady side of 50, with massive gold eye-glasses, and scanty hair, brushed carefully to hide the bald spot on the crown of his respectable head—a gentleman who pronounced his words slowly and sententiously and somehow seemed to carry in his very presence the auriferous idea of bank stock, railroad bonds and productive coupons!

"Yes, but, madam, Miss Wayland is so very—ahem!—so remarkably undemonstrative—I might even say so decidedly cold in her manner—"

"Oh, my dear sir," smoothly interrupted Mrs. Wayland, "that is the way with all girls at this interesting period of their lives. Nothing on earth but maidenly shyness—natural girlish timidity, I assure you!"

Mr. Hopkins looked gratified, but still doubtful.

"You are quite certain, then, that she really loves me?"

"There cannot possibly be a doubt of it, Mr. Hopkins!"

And Noah Hopkins departed, treading gleefully over the rinking pavements as his thoughts reverted ever and anon to the pretty 18-year-old damsel who was, cupid willing, so soon to become Mrs. Hopkins.

But what did Bessey Wayland herself think of it? And how did she contemplate the near approach of orange blossoms and wedding ring?

She sat there by the window, as her mother returned from bidding a ceremonious adieu to Mr. Hopkins, a modern edition of Niobe, "tall in tears."

She was small and fragile, with shady blue eyes, rather large and languishing; light brown hair that had an irresistible inclination to curl all over her head in tiny gold-burnished rings, and cheeks where changing dimples hid away among the loveliest roses.

"Crying again, my dear?" said Mrs. Wayland in accents of mild reproach

People find just the help they so much need, in Hood's Sarsaparilla. It furnishes the desired strength by purifying, vitalizing and enriching the blood, and thus builds up the nerves, tones the stomach and regulates the whole system. Read this:

out walking to-morrow."

"Very well, mamma."

"And I think you had better wear your blue silk with the double satin folds. Never mind about putting on your new earrings and pin. Mr. Hopkins has some rather peculiar ideas, and might consider them a little extravagant for people in our circumstances."

"Yes, mamma," said Bessie, as docile as a four-year-old child.

She was all ready, looking exceedingly lovely in the blue silk dress, when Mr. Noah Hopkins called for her, according to the program, next morning.

"What a lucky fellow I am," thought Noah, exultantly, as he drew the little gloved hand within his arm, with a sensation of proprietorship very agreeable to experience.

"Do stop a minute, Mr. Hopkins," said Bessie, as they reached the glittering splendors of a jeweler's window. "I just want to look at those pretty things! Aren't those rubies perfectly splendid. You're going to buy me a set of emeralds and diamonds, aren't you, when we are married? And a real Geneva watch with a bouquet of brilliants on the case? And a pair of those lovely link bracelets? I never had much jewelry, but when I'm married, I mean to buy everything that is pretty. And you'll get me a parure of big white pearls, won't you?"

"I'll think of it," stammered Mr. Hopkins, rather taken aback by the extent of his bride-elect's expectations.

"It will be so nice to have a rich husband," went on Bessie, ardently. "Mamma says you'll let me have a carriage and a pair of darling little cream-colored ponies, that I can drive myself, with silver-mounted harness, and—"

"Yes, but you don't consider, my dear—horses are so terribly expensive," interrupted Noah, wiping his brow with a huge yellow silk pocket handkerchief.

"What of that? You're rich, aren't you? I shall have a housekeeper, and two maids, and a colored waiter, and white kid gloves!"

"Kid gloves are two dollars a pair, my dear," apologetically put in Mr. Hopkins.

"That's nothing, as long as one has a rich husband! We shall go to Sardevoted to the testing of different varieties of farm crops, to date of seedling, to methods of cultivation, to the selection of seed, the application of fertilizers, etc. The varieties which give the most satisfactory results on the experimental ground are those used in the larger fields, and the seed thus obtained from the large fields is sold at moderate prices to farmers throughout Ontario in order to enable them to secure pure seed of the very best kinds. Besides the crops grown on the farm, a considerable area is devoted to pasturing purposes.

In regard to the variety tests, it might be mentioned that the leading kinds of nearly all sorts of farm crops are not only obtained from over the Dominion, but also from about twenty foreign countries possessing a climate similar to Ontario, from which some excellent sorts have been obtained.

Among some that may be named to the advantage of the Ontario farmers are Dawson's Golden Chaff, the Early Red Clawson, and the Early Genesee Giant, as having given very good results. In oats, the Siberian from Russia, the Joannette from France, the Oderbrucker from Germany, and the Banner of Ontario are prominent varieties, especially the Siberian, which has given excellent results in the Guelph trial grounds, and also occupied first place in the co-operative work conducted in Ontario during each of the last four years. In barleys the Mandscheuri has given the largest average yield per acre out of some 40 varieties grown for seven successive years. This is a six-rowed barley, has a stiff straw and a grain which weighs upwards of fifty pounds per measured bushel. Its importation has proved a valuable addition to the barleys of this Province, having occupied first place in the yield per acre throughout Ontario in the last four years. It is now becoming a very popular variety among farmers generally.

In spring wheat of all the varieties tested, the Herison bearded has given a very satisfactory result, the average for the past seven years having been upwards of twenty-nine bushels per acre, and the wheat, per measured bushel, a little over sixty-three pounds. In the corn tested, the mammoth Cuban and the Wisconsin earliest white Dent were very satisfactory.

say on the above subject. Comfortable quarters he placed as the first requisite, and we give the description and illustration of his barn basement. He says:

We keep the temperature of our stable at 30 to 35 degrees, and never below 30 degrees in the most severe weather. I find the cows eat and do better when not too warm. We use a single stanchion with chain tie. The stanchion is simply a pole about three inches through, mortised into a sill and securely fastened at the top. The chain tie goes around the neck with a large ring that slides easily up and down the stanchion. This gives the cow much more comfort and keeps her just as clean.

We put the first stanchion 18 inches from the wall or partition, and then one every three feet. We then put a partition between every other cow. The partition should fit tight in the manger, and should not come back between the cows more than 18 inches from the stanchion. We have a drop behind the cows of six inches. The floor on which the cows stand is five feet from manger to drop. The manger is 18 inches wide. We left an eight-inch space under the feed rack to feed grain through.

This stable has many advantages, and I think would be appreciated by all. Water is as necessary as the feed in the production of winter milk, and it is hard for the average farmer to supply his cows with plenty of it, of the right temperature. A cow cannot do her best if compelled to stand in a zero wind and drink through the ice. I would water in the stable, if possible. We have a drive well in the feed alley. The temperature of the water from this well is never below 50 degrees, but I would like to supply them with good water 10 or 15 degrees warmer.

Good care is what tells in the long run. Milk, feed and water regularly, and be sure not to leave them out when too cold. We only leave ours out long enough to arrange the stable when the temperature is below 20 degrees.

"THE BRYAN BATTLE CRY."

Among the numerous election songs now prevalent in the United States, is the one given below which seems to have the call for popularity with the western followers of "The Boy Orator":

No crown of thorns you shall behold
On labor's brow; no cross of gold
For those who dig and delve and mold,
Like slaves to heartless masters sold.

Lo, how it shines, the precious gem
Set in the queen's grand diadem!
No wonder that it bright appears,
When made of labor's sweat and tears.

In mansions made of marble dwell
The wealthy and the proud, but tell
Who made the wealth turned thus to spoils
If not the crowd that bleeds and toils.

The glowing gold sure is produced
By brain and brawn together fused
In toll's retort, and then, escaped
From it, into the dollar shaped.

Some pride themselves of learning, but
Forget the source, forget the hut,
Forget that toll its fruits transmits
In making men of thoughtless brutes.

Then tell me why dead matter may
The living soul of labor sway,
And tell me, too, ye mighty, why
Ye honest labor crucify?

Why should the brow the sweat of which
Has crowned with gold the idle rich,
Itself be made, while joy it mourns,
To wear a crown of stinging thorns?

Enslaved in the sacred cause
Of labor's right and juster laws,
We by the stars and stripes now swear
That no such crown our brows shall wear.

And, by the name we hold holy,
We swear we'll melt that cross of gold
In righteous wrath, now kindled by
The ringing Bryan battle cry.

Wayland, in accents of mild reproach, "Really, Bessie, your conduct is most insupportable."

"Mamma!" sobbed Bessie, flashing rebellion from the brimming blue orbs, "I hate Mr. Hopkins!"

"My dearest child!" exclaimed the horrified mother, "don't let me ever hear you say such a shockingly unladylike thing again! When he is so condescending as to notice a child like you!"

"Yes, but, mamma—"

"I quite understand the meaning of this new freak of obstinacy," went on Mrs. Wayland, sternly. "You have seen Charley Evans again."

"I couldn't help it, mamma," faltered Bessie; "he was at the door just as I came out of church last night, and when I—"

"The idea!" ejaculated Mrs. Wayland, holding up both her hands and looking appealingly at the ceiling, as if for inspiration. "And you can actually stoop to fancy a clerk in Mr. Hopkins' banking establishment!"

"But I don't fancy him, mamma," returned Bessie, stoutly; "I love him with my whole heart."

"Hush—sh—h!" exclaimed Mrs. Wayland, authoritatively. "You will be married a month from to-morrow to Mr. Hopkins, Charley Evans to the contrary, notwithstanding. And now let us sit down and make out a complete list of the dresses and things you will want."

"I don't care for dresses," pouted Bessie; but Mrs. Wayland paid no attention to her remonstrance and opened her tablets, putting the pencil thoughtfully to her lips.

"You see, we must be very careful at first for Mr. Hopkins is so exceedingly economical—it won't do to shock his ideas of what is proper and fitting."

Bessie winked away the tears and listened—nay, she almost smiled as her mother wrote down item after item. Mrs. Wayland could have hugged herself for her diplomacy.

"The girl never yet lived who could resist the attraction of new clothes and an outfit of dresses," she thought. "I knew how to bring the wilful little minx to reason!"

"Bessie," she said, as she finally closed the little set of tablets and restored the pencil to its place within them, "Mr. Hopkins is coming to take you a rich husband! We shall go to Saratoga, or the White Mountains, for at least two months every year, of course. I always did sigh for a gay life and plenty of excitement."

"Sixty dollars a week for eight weeks—four hundred and eighty dollars!" mentally computed Noah, with a slight shiver. "I shall come to the poorhouse, as sure as I'm a living sinner!"

"And as many dresses as I want," pursued Bessie, clapping her little hands. "Mrs. Glenn has 32 silks, and I don't know how many nuns' veiling and taffetas. Oh, Noah, how glad I am that you are rich!"

Noah Hopkins stared confusedly down at the blue eyes that were upturned to his so unconsciously.

"You'll have a billiard table, of course? I dote on billiards—and a yacht, for I'm so fond of the salt air, and sea bathing, and—"

"I'll have a private insane asylum and put myself in it first!" ejaculated Noah, driven to the very borders of distraction. "Miss Wayland, I must have entirely misunderstood your character, from beginning to end!"

"I shouldn't at all wonder if you had," said Bessie, demurely.

"I certainly never for an instant contemplated such frightful extravagance as you seem to coolly take for granted."

"If I marry a rich husband I certainly mean to use his money and enjoy it," said Bessie, defiantly.

"Then, ma'am, allow me to remark that you will not use mine! I—I prefer remaining single!"

"And what's to become of me, with all my wedding clothes ordered?" whimpered Bessie, trying very hard to summon the semblance of mortified tears into her mischievous blue eyes.

"Perhaps you might prefer some younger man?" suggested Noah, with the lively horror of a breach of promise suit rising up before his mind's eye. "I understand that my clerk, Mr. Evans, is—"

Bessie's cheeks glowed like carmine. "Mr. Evan's situation does not justify him in marrying—he is too poor. I'm afraid you'll have to take me yourself."

Noah involuntarily recoiled from the idea of pony carriages, cream-colored horses and yachts.

"Yes, but—but our head clerkship is vacant, at a salary of $2000 a year. I did intend it for old Bogley, but Charley Evans is a very deserving young fellow, and—"

Here Miss Bessie interrupted him by standing on her tiptoes to give him a kiss that almost shook his resolutions of celibacy. But he remembered the colored waiter, with the white kid gloves, and stood firm!

"But what will mamma say?" suddenly questioned Bessie.

"I will make it all right with her, my dear," said Mr. Noah Hopkins, thinking of the gorgeous India shawl full of palm leaves and pagodas, wherewith he would propitiate the impending anger of his mother-in-law that was not to be.

"It'll cost a deuce of a sum," thought Noah, sorrowfully, "but it won't compare with the daily and hourly drain of an extravagant wife. I'm well out of this scrape, shawl or no shawl!"

So our little Bessie went triumphantly home, to work at her wedding garments with renewed zeal, sewing a happy thought in with every stitch, and Charley Evans was that very day agreeably surprised with a $2000 position formally presented to him with a little stiff speech by Noah Hopkins, Esq.

"Poor Evans," thought Noah, as Charley left him after a torrent of thanks, "that extravagant little puss will be the ruin of him before he is a year older, but it's no business of mine."

Nevertheless, Mr. Evans would persist in rushing blindly upon his fate, and married Bessie Wayland on the very day originally set for the consummation of Noah's own nuptials. Mr. Hopkins went to the wedding, and muttered thoughtfully to himself as the bridal party passed beneath the arched doorway of the church:

"Good Apollo! what an escape I have had!"

But Mr. and Mrs. Evans were quite contented with the existing state of things.—N. Y. Weekly.

Sudden Death.

Thos. Hanley, of Kingston, died Thursday morning of last week, after a week's severe illness from inflammation of the bowels. He was aged 67 years and was local agent of G. T. R. and Richelieu and Ontario Navigation Co., Kingston. Mr. Hanley was a brother of Mr. J. P. Hanley, station agent at Napanee, a distant relative of Mr. Thos. Hanley, of Belleville, and Mr. J. C. Hanley, of Tyndinaga. Mr. Hanley was a trusted employe of the G. T. R., and a highly respected citizen of the Limestone City. The funeral, which took place on Sunday afternoon, was one of the largest that has been seen in Kingston in years, and St. Mary's cathedral was crowded to the doors. The remains were interred in St. Mary's cemetery.

Something Like Popularity.

It is little to be wondered at that there is such a tremendous demand for the FAMILY HERALD and WEEKLY STAR of Montreal. So great is the rush that in August and September the publishers had to refuse to accept new subscribers, their splendid printing equipment being already taxed to its utmost to catch the mails. We hear the publishers have now got their lightning presses speeded up and their mailing appliances improved, so they can accept a limited number of new subscribers. Those who have been permitted a private view of the season's premium. "The Orphan's Prayer," predict that the demand for the FAMILY HERALD and WEEKLY STAR this autumn will be enormous. And to think that such a paper is only one dollar a year; coming every week, with one hundred and twenty eight columns of the best reading of the day, and the latest and most reliable news record, is simply a thing that is beyond comprehension.

An Opportunity Not to be Lost.

It is almost too bad to give it away, but really the story is too good to keep. It appears that a popular young gentleman called on an up town young lady one evening recently. When he arrived there was not a cloud in the sky, so he carried no umbrella and wore neither galoshes nor mackintosh. At 10 o'clock, when he arose to go, it was raining hard. "My, my, my!" said the nice young lady, "If you go out in all this storm you will catch your death of cold!" "I'm afraid I might!" was the trembling answer. "Well I'll tell you what—stay all night; you can sleep with Tom. Excuse me for a minute," and the young lady flew gracefully upstairs to see that Tom's room was in order. In five minutes she came down to announce that everything was ready, but her lover was not in sight. In a very few minutes he appeared, dripping wet and out of breath from running, with a bundle in a newspaper under his arm. "Why, dear, where have you been?" was her greeting. "Been home after my night shirt!" was the only

Coffee Drunkards.

Dr. Mendel, of Berlin, says the leading symptoms of coffee drinkers are profound depression of spirits, frequent headaches with insomnia. A strong dose of coffee will relieve, then the ailment returns, the muscles become weak and the hands tremble when at rest. The victims suffer so severely they dare not abandon the drinking of coffee for fear of death! Dr. Mendel had under his constant observation a community of coffee drinkers in and about Essex. Madden Cereal, the new grain coffee, had just the opposite effect and should be used instead of coffee. It is cheaper and can be purchased from any grocer.

Sudden Death.

N. P. Crossley, of King, father of Rev. D. O. Crossley, of the Western Church, and Rev. H. T. Crossley, the evangelist, died at his late residence on Saturday last and was buried on Tuesday, of this week. He had reached the ripe age of 85 years, and up to within two days of his death was in his usual health although somewhat feeble. He received a slight stroke of paralysis on Thursday morning and died two days later. His funeral was largely attended from far and near he having been a respected and worthy citizen of the community for over 65 years.

Ought to be used and those in use abandoned: First—When we are obliged to remove small objects to a considerable distance from the eye in order to see them distinctly. Second—If we find it necessary to get more light than formerly, as, for instance, to place the light between the eye and the object. Third—If looking at and considering a near object it becomes confused and appears to have a kind of mist before it. Fourth—When the letters of a book run one into the other and hence appear double. Fifth—If the eyes are so fatigued by a little exercise that we are obliged to shut them from time to time and relieve them by looking at different objects. Sixth—If troubled a great deal with headache. The above can be scientifically attended to by A. F. Chinneck, graduate optician, at F. Chinneck's Jewelry Store.

A Cent a Week

Pays for a large eight-page weekly newspaper. The cutting in half of the ordinary rate for weekly papers by the MONTREAL WEEKLY GAZETTE has been attended by a large increase in circulation, which the publishers expect to see still further expanded during the coming year. The WEEKLY GAZETTE gives the news, and interests all classes who takes an intelligent interest in public affairs and the development of Canada's resources. It gives as special features, weekly, reliable market reports, a page of instructive and entertaining matter of special interest to women, and part of a serial story from the pen of some well-known writer. At fifty cents a year it is the cheapest of the metropolitan weeklies, and it is good. It is published by the Gazette Printing Company, Richard White, Managing Director, Montreal, to whom correspondence and orders should be addressed.

A Courageous Lad.

Jack Sparks, the 17-year-old son of Dr. Sparks, Kingston, has accomplished a feat that would do justice to an old timer. On the morning of July 23rd last the young lad left Kingston on his wheel, his object being, not to break records, but to journey leisurely along the country roads as far as Chicago, covering the distance in seven days actual riding time. Not being satisfied to stop in The World's Fair city he started eastward, going down through Indiana and Ohio. At Toledo he stopped for a few days and then Cleveland was reached. Buffalo was the next point of interest and it was while nearing this city that he met with the only mishap that occurred on the whole trip, breaking his handle bar in going down a hill. The accident took place about 50 miles from Buffalo and he was compelled to make that distance by rail, being the only road covered except by wheel. From Buffalo he crossed into Canada, coming home by way of Hamilton. Mr. Sparks says that the roads of Canada are far superior to those of the United States. The distance covered was 2,000 miles, a plucky ride for one so young, and his plucky trip has won the admiration of his many friends.

Opera House.

Lincoln J. Carter's "The Heart of Chicago," said to be an exceptionally strong melodrama will be the next attraction at the Opera House, on Wednesday Oct. 21st. "The Heart of Chicago" is said to be exceptionally well put on and to present some extraordinary stage pictures. As the story of the play opens on the night of the great Chicago Fire, and thus affords a brilliant opportunity for the introduction of a fire the opportunity is not wasted. The corner of State and Madison streets before, during and after the fire is shown. Old timers in Chicago will readily recognize the old landmarks which were reproduced from photographs. The next important scene represents the roof of the Masonic Temple and also shows a panoramic view of the city to the south and west, showing Michigan Ave, State Street and Wabash Avenue as far as Twelfth Street and the cross streets almost to the river. The Roof Garden scene affords opportunity for the introduction of a number of clever specialties. An absolutely new railroad scene is also a feature of the play. The scene is laid near Whiting, Ind., and a train is seen approaching in the distance, its headlight being at first merely a bright speck in the darkness gradually increasing in size as it draws nearer. Just as the heroine of the play adjusts the signal lights of the open bridge the train dashes down to the footlights and comes to a full stop. The interpreting company is said to be the best which has ever been sent to us by Mr. Carter.

A Practice Game.

On Tuesday afternoon a game of football was played in the park between the Collegiate Institute boys and a picked team, the latter kindly consenting to play in order to give the Collegiate team some practice before the approaching matches. It was a good exhibition and the N. C. I. team is stronger this year than ever and we predict that the close of the season will still find the cup in Napanee. At 4:30 the teams lined up as follows:

N. C. I.	goal	TOWN.
Lamey,		Costes
Anderson,	goal	(Brown,
Exley,	backs	Bald,
Hawley,		Bradshaw,
Rockwell,	half backs	Haines,
Nixon,		Ham,
Grieve,		Harrison,
Vanaeltine,		Bain,
Trimble,	forwards	Hayes
Preston,		Allen,
McCullough,		Stevens,

Shortly after the ball was kicked off Trimble made a sharp shot on goal, which scored. Some good plays then ensued before McCullough succeeded in putting the ball between the sticks off an elegant corner kick. After some more scrambling Preston made a rush on goal and by neat manoeuvring placed a neat one in in goal before half time was called, making the score: 3 to 0 in favor of the Collegiate. After a five minutes rest play was again resumed and the town team played a much stronger game but could not compete with the boys from the Institute and before time was called Preston scored twice more and McCullough once, the game ending 6 to 0 in favor of the Institute. The boys on the town team all played well, there being no distinction between them.

NOTES.
Captain Grieve is the "right man in the right place" and we sincerely hope he will be able to bring his team to the front again this fall as he did last year.

Vanaeltine, Trimble, Preston, McCullough and Grieve, the forwards, are very strong this year and did elegant work on Tuesday.

Hawley, Rockwell and Nixon, the half backs, were never in better trim than now, and great things are expected of them in the approaching games.

The backs, Anderson and Exley are playing a fine game and will help to keep the trophy again.

Last, but not least, is Geo. Lamey, the goal keeper. If the ball is fortunate enough to get through the lines to him, it will speedily rebound and be found "far away," for Lamey is doing some fine work and with practice will be unapproachable.

The combination work of the forwards on the right wing of the school team was not as good as it might be, and a little time given to that practice would strengthen them considerably.

The season will be opened on Saturday, Oct. 24th, at the park, when Pictou High School will play the N. C. I. Every one that can should be there to encourage the boys in their good playing.

PARISH OF SELBY - Services for 20th Sunday after Trinity: St. Jude's, Kingsford, 10:30 a.m.; St. John's, Selby, 2 p.m.; St. Jude's, Napanee Mills, 7 p.m.

PARISH OF CAMDEN - Services for Sunday next. All sermons will be memorial, in memory of the late Archbishop of Canterbury, whose death the church throughout the world is mourning: St. Luke, Camden East, 11 o'clock; St. John's, Newburgh, Holy Communion 8 o'clock, Evening Prayer 3 o'clock; St. Anthony's, Yarker, 7 o'clock; and St. Jude's, Napanee Mills, 7 o'clock.

PARISH OF BATH - The Annual Harvest Thanksgiving service will be held in St. John's church on Sunday next, 18th October, (St. Luke's Day), at 11 a.m. It is earnestly hoped that, as far as possible, every communicant of the Parish will be present and share in the celebration of the Holy Communion, which will be the chief service of the day. The Rev. Wm. Lewin, of Kingston, once High School Teacher of Newburgh, will preach at this service and also at the evening service at 7 o'clock. The church is to be handsomely decorated and the services will be musically rendered. The Rectors and Wardens have issued a notice requesting every parishioner to make a liberal free-will Thank Offering to God on this occasion for the church's general fund.

Rev. A. B. Chambers, B. C. L., will preach in the Eastern Methodist church next Sunday evening.

Reunion Postponed.
The reunion announced for Tuesday evening next, by the Ladies' Guild of S. Mary Magdalene, has been postponed, in consequence of the "New Woman" having received an invitation to play that piece at Picton the same date.

Mistaken Identity
Early Tuesday evening a student of Queen's college was accosted on King street, near Princess street, by two girls, one of whom gave him a "dressing down," using anything but choice language. The student was taken quite by surprise and could only account for the behaviour of the girls on the ground of mistaken identity. —Whig.

Ploughing Match.

A printing office is considered by many persons to be rather a tough place, and a newspaper worker likely to be a bad man. Statistics, however do not bear out that idea," said a police captain to a Philadelphia Bulletin reporter. "In looking over a book containing the records of prisoners, I find that in the state penitentiary of Texas out of 3,890 convicts there is not a single newspaper man or printer. There were, however, ministers, doctors, bankers, barbers, photographers, barkeepers, cooks, and members of all other professions and callings."

An important feature of Harper's Magazine for several months to come will be Poulney Bigelow's series of papers on the "White Man's Africa," treating in the author's original and striking way the new continent recently opened up to European exploitation. The first paper, in the November number, will give a novel view of Jameson's raid from material placed in the author's hand by an English physician and a Boer official — thus presenting both sides of this remarkable episode. The series is the result of a journey to South Africa undertaken by Mr. Bigelow for Harper's Magazine, and is to be illustrated from photographs specially made for the purpose.
